

STREAMSIDE DIARY

OBSERVATION AND INTERPRETATION FACT SHEET

DATE & TIME 12.06.2016 - Time 10:00 - 18:30

LOCATION Trysil, Trysilelva - "secret spot"

STILL  SLOW  MEDIUM  FAST

KEY LEARNING

Fantastic hatch - all species at once!!

Must be one of the first really good days, the fish were not crazy even though the may's were hatching like crazy

A super intense swarming of egg lying caddis. Millions.

Lots of great shots!!

WEATHER

TEMPERATURE WATER & AIR

WIND STRENGTH & DIRECTION

WATER LEVEL 2.6 m HI  LO  AVG

WATER CLEAR  DISCOLORED

INSECT ACTIVITY

SPECIES/STAGE	SIZE	INTENSITY (1-6)	SELECTIVE (y/n)	TIME
Baetis EM (golden olive and light olive)	8-10 mm	4	n	10:00-13:30
B. Digitatus (brown/brown olive)	7-8 mm	2	n	10:00-13:30
B. Niger (blackish/lt olive)	6-8 mm	1	n	10:00-13:30
Hept Dalecarloa + Sulphur	12-14 mm	3	n	12:00 - 14:00
Siphonurus Aestevalis	15-20 mm	2	n	all day
Swarming caddis	10-12 mm	6	n	15:00-

PRACTICAL FISHING

PATTERN	SIZE	METHOD	EFFICIENCY	TIME
Baetis Flymf	14-16	In the film	5	10:00-13:00
Sparke Dun	12-16	Dry	4	12:00-15:00
Paraduns (olive/brown olive)	12-16	Dry	2	all day

RELEASES RANGE: 0.5 - 1.3 kg TROUT: 8 GRAYLING: 6 OTHER: .....

NOTES

Fished with Lukas and the dog, Lilo. We went out for an all-day, all in, heavy fly fishing bonanza. The weather forecast was great, with good temperatures, little wind (we were worried about the northern draft, though) and the water level once again has settled to normal after the flooding earlier in the summer.

It took some time before we solved the hatch. It was difficult, since the larger species were on the water, but the fish seemed uninterested in the Heptageniids and Siphonophores. But as we have experienced so often – the ones that outnumber the rest, is the preferred choice.

The solution throughout the day really was the olive size 14. and in particular the sparkle duns from 11 am until early afternoon.

Guess it's too early to expect heavy spinner falls. There are some spinners in the afternoon, but not enough to attract heavy rises.

The caddis we have been fishing on the past two weeks were swarming today. Super-intense clouds consisting of millions of size 14 caddis flew over the river from early afternoon. With all those bugs in the air, we were fishing BWO imitations on the water.

The catch today was moderate – both trout and grayling. Caught in our regular spots "Sweden", "Lillestrøm" and "Scotland".

SKETCHES